Explore the Delaware Museum of Natural History for Just $2 Every Tuesday in August

Wilmington, DE — Every Tuesday in August, the Delaware Museum of Natural History is partnering with Artisans' Bank to lower admission prices to just $2 per person during Two Dollar Tuesdays. Visitors are invited to explore the wonders of the natural world at the Museum for just $2 on August 4, 11, 18, and 25, courtesy of Artisans' Bank.

Admission includes entry to the Museum's special exhibit, Dr. Entomo's Palace of Exotic Wonders, where visitors can explore the truth, myths, and mysteries surrounding some of nature's most curious creatures – many of them alive and on view. Resembling an old-fashioned circus sideshow, this hair-raising exhibit will captivate those daring enough to enter with tales of the deceptive and treacherous techniques these insects can wield on unsuspecting predators.

Elsewhere in the Museum, galleries showcase Delaware's only dinosaurs on permanent display, a life-sized model of a giant squid, a coral reef walkover, an African watering hole, and exotic mollusk and bird collections. The Larry F. Scott Nature Trail and Butterfly Garden reach their peak this time of year, and visitors can cool off inside to view a spine-tingling film in our DuPont Auditorium.

Artisans' Bank is the presenting sponsor of Two Dollar Tuesdays.
